Market Review

German and US 10Y government yield rose by circa 10 bps to 0.01% and 2.50% respectively in April. They reacted to better-than-expected macroeconomic data. Actually, the US economy performed well (+3.2% GDP annualized growth in Q1 vs. +2.3% expected, higher ISM manufacturing index, strong job market...) and the Eurozone economy was slightly better (+0.4% GDP growth in Q1 vs. +0.3% expected). The yield curve steepened as short-term rates remained under central banks' dovish stance. Peripheral spreads tightened moderately.

Corporate bonds performed well. Both Bloomberg Barclays EUR Corporates IG and HY indices increased, by 0.72% and 1.32% respectively. They benefited from spreads tightening (IG -13 bps, HY -27 bps) which reflected, in parallel with equities (Euro Stoxx 50 +4.9%), surprisingly reassuring Q1 results.

Portfolio Performance

The fund gained 0.94% in April. Both IG and HY segments contributed positively as credit spreads tightened. Good performance of most issuers (Paprec, WFS, Dometic, Eramet, Stada, Mölnlycke, Fives notably) more than offset Atalian downturn.

Market Outlook

While we stuck to our balanced approach towards IG and HY corporate bonds, we implemented numerous arbitrages to take advantage of relative value. We reduced positions in outperforming names (El Corte Ingles, Dufry) and weakening ones (Prysmian, Fives) to reinforce undervalued names (Volvo, Telecom Italia) and introduce a new issue (Fnac). We also rolled our position in Altice Europe 2022 to 2025, in the wake of expecting refinancing.
